You say you've always wanted to learn a second language? Well enough to actually speak it? But you don't have five years of spare time?

How about a language that won't take five years?

How about a language that's four times easier to learn? (Because the grammar is completely regular—and very simple.) One that's spoken by two million people, in every country? (Because it's politically neutral—it doesn't belong to any single nation or group.) One that's easy to pronounce and read? (Because it's completely phonetic.) One that opens the world to you?

Ready for a surprise? It's Esperanto—the international language that works.
